Trip to Colorado
Paul Moore, of the Nebraska Telephone Company, left Monday noon for Colorado, where he expects to spend a week's vacation, visiting Colorado Springs, Cripple Creek, and other points in the mountains. He took his new Graflex camera along with him to use in getting some fine views.

Visit the Saddle Man

There is a man in South Omaha who has been in the saddle and harness business many years and takes pride in the quality of the goods he sells. He wants readers of The Herald to call and see him when in South Omaha, and solicits their business in an advertisement under the head, "Stock Yards Saddlery Co."

TO TRADE

for feeder cattle or mules, or, for sale, quarter section of Box Butte county unimproved land. Dark sandy loam soil, surface level, in a good farming community, and 3 1/2 miles from railroad. Shall make a price which will dispose of this within 30 days. If interested you had better act quickly. VIRGIL SMITH, Humboldt, Nebr.

Does It?

Ed Slaughter, the local colored sage, who is an authority on everything from automobiles to flying machines, received a telegram one day last week asking him to meet the noon train from the west with some information. The telegram asked whether five aces beat a royal flush. Slaughter was at the train and met the sender of the telegram, another colored man, by the name of Ed Hayes. The following dialogue ensued:

"There can't be no such thing as a royal flush and five aces in one deck," said Ed number one, "for you've got to have one of them aces in that royal flush." "But we did have 'em both at once," said Ed number two. "Well, then, you had a cold deck," said Ed number one, "and you can't pay that bet."

Wants to Get Acquainted

There are probably not many cattle salesmen who have as large acquaintance among the cattlemen of Nebraska as J. M. (Johnny) Cook, manager of the Great Western Commission Co., but there are others with whom he wishes to get acquainted, as will be seen by the ad which runs regularly in The Herald as well as in this special issue. When in the Exchange Building at South Omaha call on him or any of his able assistants and you will receive a cordial welcome, and square treatment if you do business with them.

Have Your Picture Printed

There are many readers of The Herald who could well afford to have engravings made of themselves or their families or farm and ranch scenes. There are many local papers that would gladly use such cuts in their news columns but do not find that it pays them to go to the expense of having them made in any considerable quantities. We suggest that ranchmen and others do the right thing by their local newspapers by having cuts made, which can be used in as many papers as desired. In this connection it is proper to call attention to the ads of engravers appearing in The Herald. The Bee Engraving Department and the Bramblett Engraving Co., both of Omaha, do especially good engraving for newspaper printing, which is some times hard to make satisfactory. Their prices are reasonable. They also do engraving for printing on enameled paper, cards, etc. The Herald will order from them for you, if desired.

Back in The Herald Again

It is a great pleasure to present to Herald readers again, thru our advertising columns, the Bowles Live Stock Commission Co. Their ad is one of the best to be found in any paper for the reason that it presents briefly the strong points upon which they solicit business. They have the capital, facilities and experienced men to handle successfully any business entrusted to them. Their ad should be read by stockmen generally.

New Firm, Experienced Salesmen

The new firm of Bryson Bros., live stock commission merchants, South Omaha, start out right by ordering an ad in The Herald, official paper of the Nebraska Stock Growers Association. This new firm is composed of two experienced and successful salesmen: T. H. Bryson, who manages the cattle end of the business, and N. R. Bryson, hog salesman. They name some splendid references in their ad, and invite a trial shipment, being confident of their ability to please.

"Right Down to the Minute"

Just like people engaged in other lines of business who make a success of it, live stock commission men must be up-to-date in their methods as well as having facilities for doing what they undertake. "Right down to the minute way," is what Frazier-Johnson Company claim in their ad; and they are men who live up to their claims. To their large list of customers they wish to add as many new ones as possible, and with that in view extend a cordial invitation for a trial shipment.

Owing to the disastrous effect of the Illinois tariff upon farm values in Illinois, the farm of a constituent of Representative Martin D. Foster brought only $287.50 an acre.

"I did not rise, Mr. Chairman, to enter into a discussion of the general business condition of the country. I rose to remind those gentlemen on the other side of the aisle, who have been crying hard times, that the republican minority in this chamber cannot consistently criticize the administration so long as they are divided in the support of Administration measures."—Representative Poff of North Carolina.
